

TESTIMONIALS FOR MEDICINES

Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine
Company Publishes Only Genuine Ones.

The testimonials published by the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company come unsolicited. Before they are used the Company takes great care to inform itself about the writer. Never knowingly, has it published an untruthful letter, never is a letter published without written consent signed by the writer.

The reason that thousands of women from all parts of the country write such grateful letters is that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has brought health and happiness into their lives, once burdened with pain and illness.

It has relieved women from some of the worst forms of female ills, from displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, nervousness, weakness, stomach troubles and from the blues.

It is impossible for any woman who is well and who has never suffered to realize how these poor, suffering women feel when restored to health; and their desire to help other women who are suffering as they did.

Itching Blisters Formed Crust

On Hands. Swelled in Blisters.
Red and Angry Looking. Burned and Would Crack and Bleed.
Cuticura Healed. Cost $1.00.

"I was poisoned by the use of soap and hard water, and my hands began to burn and itch. The skin would swell up in blisters that were red and angry looking, and little fine water blisters would form. These broke and formed a hard crust and when I shut my hands the skin would crack and bleed."

"I was given a sample of Cuticura Soap and Ointment which relieved me at once of the burning sensation. I bought more and my hands were healed, and the flesh all smooth." (Signed) Mrs. Martha M. Quimby, North Troy, Vt., Sept. 30, 1916.

Cuticura Soap daily and Cuticura Ointment occasionally prevent pimples, blackheads or other eruptions. Unusually complexions are often a bar to social and business success.

For Free Sample Each by Return Mail, address post-card: "Cuticura, Dept. B, Boston." Sold everywhere.

GOING TO TAKE REST.

Lawson Will Leave the "Leak Mess" to Others.

Boston, Jan. 27.—Thomas W. Lawson, the Boston financier, who has figured prominently in the investigation by the rules committee of the House of Representatives, into the alleged leak on President Wilson's peace note, stated last night that he was leaving the "leak mess" to others and that he intended to go to his Oregon ranch for a four months' vacation.

In his statement, he suggested that Sherman L. Whipple, the committee's counsel, show from the books of all the members of the New York stock exchange who bought and who sold shares during the 13 days ending Dec. 23, who paid for the shares bought and who got the money for the shares sold, and to show by the books of banks and trust companies, where the money actually came from and where it finally went, and "whether it was in the form of millions of Chicago delivered, easily converted bonds, or in Cincinnati delivery $1,000 bank bills."

FOUND HER FORMER PASTOR.

Miss Mildred Chase Has Surprise When She Goes to Bartlettboro.

Bartlettboro, Jan. 29.—When George Edward Kent and Miss Mildred Ethel Chase, both of Springfield, Mass., asked Saturday morning at the office of the Bartlettboro town clerk to be directed to the Episcopal rectory, Miss Chase did not expect to find Rev. J. Frederick Virginia and was especially delighted to have him perform the marriage ceremony that made her Mrs. George Kent. She had been a parishioner of Mr. Virginia's in Elizabeth, N. J., where Mr. Virginia was located until last fall, when he accepted the call to the Bartlettboro church. The young people had known each other in school days and met again recently in Springfield, where Kent is employed as a woodworker, and where his bride had recently come to visit.

Walter J. House of 68 Margaret street, Springfield, and Miss Hazel S. Hall of East Longmeadow, Mass., were married by Carl S. Hopkins, town clerk, Friday.

NO NEED TO FEAR BALDNESS

Here's a Good Way to Stop Loss of Hair and Start New Hair Growth

If your hair is falling or thinning out, don't wait another day, but go to the Red Cross Pharmacy and get a bottle of Parisian Sage, the truly efficient hair grower.

Don't say: "It's the same old story. I've heard it before," but try a bottle at their risk. They guarantee Parisian Sage to grow hair, to stop falling hair, to cure dandruff and stop scalp itch, or money back.

Parisian Sage contains just the elements needed to properly invigorate and nourish the hair roots. It's a prime favorite with discriminating ladies, because it makes the hair soft, bright, and appear twice as abundant.

Parisian Sage is inexpensive and easily obtainable at all drug stores.—Adv.

MEXICANS FLEE U. S. TROOPS

Utah Troops in Skirmish on Mexican Border with Carranzistas.

NO CASUALTIES ON AMERICAN SIDE

After Prolonged Exchange of Shots Near Stonehouse, Arizona

Tucson, Ariz., Jan. 29.—Fighting on the border between Mexicans and United States cavalrymen stopped at noon Saturday, according to reports Saturday night. No casualties were reported on the American side. Mexican losses are unknown.

Mexican Consul Delgado at Nogales telephoned to Sheriff Rye Miles of Pima county at Tucson Saturday that he believed the Mexicans were Carranza soldiers. The scene of the fighting is in a remote section and communication is difficult.

The Mexicans were driven across the international boundary. They took refuge in adobe houses, but were routed and the houses burned. The Mexicans have fled to the hills.

The Mexicans who had been engaged in the fight with American troops and cowboys on the Sonora-Arizona line fled, and Saturday night the Americans were awaiting a possible renewal of the attack.

Major Wallace, in command of troop F, Utah cavalry, is in charge at Arivaca, Ariz., and has 75 men in his force. The fight was ended by the flight of the Mexicans, who were recognized by rancheros, who said they were from the Carranza garrison at Stonehouse, and were under command of Capt. Serino, Lieut. Arns, with a detachment on foot, went over the line to get into the rear of the attackers, but the Mexicans had retired.

Lying in rocks close to the international line, five miles south of Ruby, Ariz., 40 members of troop I, 1st Utah cavalry, commanded by Lieut. Arns, were keeping up an incessant firing at Mexican soldiers across the line Saturday. The Mexicans were returning the shots.

As near as known, none of the American troops has been wounded or killed. Reinforcements from Nogales were being rushed to the scene. Soldiers and civilians returning from the line report they saw several Mexican soldiers fall during the fighting. A telephone message from Arivaca said the Mexican soldiers engaging the Americans were from the Carranza garrison at Sasabe.

NEW POTATO DISEASE.

Prevalent Last Season in Eastern Sections.

A potato disease appearing on certain soils and apparently associated with the lack of potash in the commercial fertilizers used was prevalent last summer in various sections of the east. According to specialists of the bureau of plant industry, the trouble was largely controlled by the use of stable manure. The disease is expected to appear again with increased severity during the coming season in many potato-growing sections, from Maine to Virginia, and probably also farther south. It was first noted in scattered fields in 1915. In 1916 it became serious and general over considerable areas. Last year the disease was first observed late in June in Maryland and Virginia, and during the latter part of July in Maine. The affected plants first develop a downward rolling of the leaf margins, accompanied by a peculiar browning of the surface, sometimes mistaken for spray injury. Since it occurs on unsprayed as well as on sprayed plants, it can not be due to the corrosive action of sprays. The foliage gradually turns brown—now yellow—and the plants ripen prematurely. Death of the leaves and sudden collapse of the stems at the ground level follow. The yield, of course, is much reduced.

The disease is found more commonly on fields of early-maturing varieties, but is not restricted to them. It also appears first on early-planted fields.

What is more striking is the very apparent association of the trouble with certain soil types, at least in Maine, where this relation, as well as other features of the trouble, are being investigated by the department experts in co-operation with the Maine agricultural experiment station.

Soils which originally supported the growth of soft woods, or "mixed-growth lands," developed the diseased condition in its most severe type, while the hardwood ridges showed it least or not at all. The trouble appeared first in the swales or lowlands, where the natural drainage was not so good as on the higher ridge land. When the disease appeared at all on the higher ground, it was of a less severe type.

Specific fungi are frequently found on the stems of the collapsing plants, and some of these most constantly seen belong to disease-producing groups. Their relation to the trouble is being investigated, but the present indications suggest that they are not the primary cause but have attacked the plants already seriously weakened by other agencies.

Fertilizer experiments, in progress on affected fields demonstrated that the plots receiving potash showed little or no signs of the trouble, even where the other plots were entirely dead. Stable manure also held the disease in almost complete control.

Investigations of the trouble by the department are incomplete, but the present indications are that it is due to insufficient potash, or, perhaps, in some soils at least, to an excess of nitrates in the presence of a minimum potash supply. Farmers who are unable to secure potash fertilizer for their potato fields but who have stable manure may insure their crops against attack by its use. In sections where certain types of soil have been observed to suffer from the disease under discussion, and it is advisable to plant potatoes on these types next year, it is strongly recommended that potash fertilizers or stable manure be applied if either are obtainable.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr.
Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. They are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel. His efforts to banish it brought out these little olive-colored tablets.

These pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel, but to let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Most headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "lousy" and "heavy." Note how they "clear" clouded brain and how they "perk up" the spirits. 10c and 25c a box. All druggists.

SEA POWER IS MOST IMPORTANT TO U. S.

Former Secretary of the Navy George
Von L. Meyer Declares Also That Monroe Doctrine Is as Strong as the American Fleet.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 26.—There is no nation in which sea power will in the future play a greater and a more decisive part as to its destiny than that of the United States, and the Monroe doctrine is as strong as the American fleet and no stronger, George Von L. Meyer, former secretary of the navy, said in an address last night before the Congress of Constructive Patriotism here.

Mr. Meyer said there was no doubt but that the United States was deficient in sea power, and he pointed to history, including that correlated with American sea power in the four principal wars the United States has fought, and to naval lessons learned in the European war, to support his plea for a great navy in the future. Continuing, he said:

"But how are we to get this great navy with its efficiency and preparedness? The common idea is that a navy consists in having a number of ships. The first essential of a navy is a mind which makes a necessary estimate of the situation, makes plans to meet it and carries them out—which trains the men and designs the ships. I stated last winter in Washington at the Security league meeting that the trouble with our navy was that it had no mind."

"Mr. Daniels took it as a personal reflection as to his brain matter. Navy men knew that I referred to lack of organization, which in the armies and navies of Europe are known as staffs, and I knew that Mr. Daniels had directed an organization which corresponded to a staff, and which I had instituted in 1912 as the outcome of the study of Admiral Mahan and a group of officers. And three years elapsed before any substitute was put in force."

"With a proper mind, or organization, efficiency can be brought about by a study of war conditions, by planning, by training, by discipline, by energy, by constant target practice, by fleet maneuvers and annual mobilization of the entire navy—both in the Atlantic and Pacific oceans."

"Preparation for war has always been known to be essential. It should be better known now than ever before. Lack of preparation has never been due to lack of knowledge but always to neglect. A distinguished critic has said that the factors that decide which nation shall be the victor and which the vanquished, are determined before the war begins, they are simply functions of preparedness. If our policies are sufficiently important to our well being, we must be ready to maintain them by force. That is, we should have sufficient force to match the size and importance of our policies."

While the United States is "pathetically weak as to preparedness for war," Mr. Meyer said, it is exceptionally well off in the raw material required for military strength. As a peaceful nation it is not far behind.

"Admiral Mahan tells us," he continued, "that far-sightedness is needed for adequate military and naval preparedness, especially in these days. Furthermore, he told us that when the canal through the Isthmus of Panama was completed, the Caribbean will be changed from a place of local traffic to one of the great highways of the world, bringing the interests of other great nations along our shores, as they have been before. With the responsibility of maintaining and protecting this great route of commerce, we can no longer stand aloof, or possibly keep clear of international complications."

"Our position with reference to the Panama canal will resemble that of England to the channel, and that of the Mediterranean countries to the Suez canal. Have we prepared ourselves for this responsibility, or is the secretary of the navy studying the international situation which may call for the need of a navy in the Caribbean, or of the length of time that will have to elapse before our navy will be ready to fulfill its obligations? Have any steps been taken towards solving the problem by making an estimate of the situation, as is now adopted in the army and navy staffs of all the great countries?"

Concluding, Mr. Meyer said: "In the past, with the vast amount of immigration into this country, the safeguard of our republic has been compulsory education. With conditions in the world existing as they do, the welfare of our people and the preservation of our institutions, depends in the future upon compulsory training, both military and naval. Let our people understand throughout the land that these duties of citizenship that we have been neglecting. Let us instill into our hearts the spirit of the Minute Men of Concord and Lexington. Let us not sacrifice the valor of youth through the valor of ignorance, but let us train every citizen before he comes of age, as Switzerland has done, in the art of defense and in the science of organization and efficiency. Then we will have no fear as to the American prestige, its navy or its army, its patriotism, its safety, or its honor."

A Melancholy Reflection.

Perhaps it is too cruel to recall that this same President Wilson who is speaking for disarmament under the new peace regime is that same president who let into one of his preparedness speeches the climax that we need the biggest navy.—Lewisohn (Me.) Sun.

WILL BE ASKED TO SAY YES OR NO

Attorney Whipple Will Put Direct the Question on Leak Knowledge

BROKERS' RECORDS ARE COMING IN

Investigation Is Resumed at
New York To-day with Bankers Present

New York, Jan. 29.—Each witness who is examined when the House rules committee resumes to-day its investigation of the alleged leak of advance information on the president's peace note will be asked point blank, whether he had advance knowledge of the action contemplated by Mr. Wilson, it was announced Saturday night by Sherman L. Whipple, counsel of the committee.

Mr. Whipple declared that he had not yet found anyone who would admit receiving "what might be called advance information," nor had anyone acknowledged spreading the confidential information given newspaper men by Secretary of State Lansing the morning of the day the note was made public.

"We are trying to trace back the leak to an earlier hour than Secretary Lansing's confidential statement," said Mr. Whipple.

Witnesses will be asked, he explained, why they thought the market was bearish and how they learned of this condition. He emphasized, however, that the committee was not trying to prove there was a leak or to disprove it, but merely seeking information on which to formulate its own conclusions. Mr. Whipple went to his home in Boston Saturday night but returned yesterday to meet the members of the rules committee.

Records of the stockbrokers' transactions during the period covered by the investigation of the committee began to reach the representatives of the committee at New York Saturday. Brokers were assured that the committee expected to make no more modifications in its demands.

As the committee's requirements now stand, it will not be necessary for the brokers to submit trial balances of their condition at the close of the close of business December 9 nor to show how the accounts of the customers stood in dollars and cents. It will not be necessary to show accounts of customers. Brokers must, however, submit the names of all customers and the data must be in such form that if the committee finds reasons to do so, it will be able to connect names and accounts.

Sherman L. Whipple, counsel of the committee, believes that if he can find out who were the big winners in the market that was influenced by the president's peace note, it will be easier to learn what traders, if any, received advance information and where the information came from.

Belief that the leak inquiry may last three weeks more was expressed Saturday by Chairman Henry of the rules committee on his return from New York. He said the New York hearings probably would be closed at the end of this week. They will be resumed at Washington immediately thereafter.

HENRY LANE WILSON OUT.

Quits Peace League, Owing to Disapproval of President's Plan.

Indianapolis, Jan. 29.—Henry Lane Wilson, in a letter to William Howard Taft, president of the National Association of the League to Enforce Peace, announced Saturday his resignation as president of the Indiana branch of the league. Mr. Wilson stated that his resignation is due to the belief that some of the leaders are trying to divert it from its original purpose and adopt as a program of action the plan for a world alliance put forward by President Wilson in his address to the Senate this week.

"As the new doctrines announced by the president have not been rejected by those in authority in the league to enforce peace, and as there are indications of feverish activity in fashioning and forming the league's tendencies conformably with the program which the president has so dramatically announced, I feel obliged to sever my connection with its affairs," said Mr. Wilson in his letter.

Twice as Much.
A sailor being asked how he liked his bride is reported to have remarked: "Why, I've seen, I took her for only half of me, as the parson says, but damn me, she's left twice as much as I am. I am only a tar, and she's a tar-tar."—New York Telegraph.

Oh, thank you, Mr. Smith. I do like to have you come to see sister, 'cause you always have this nice Adams Black Jack gum. She says it makes your breath sweet, and Ma says it's fine for colds—but I like it just because it tastes so good.

THEY WERE RUNDOWN

How often we hear it said of a man or woman that "they were rundown in health," which accounts for their present sickness. For that reason it is important that when you find you tire easily, when your nerves are troublesome, or your work is irksome, you should strengthen your system immediately with the blood-enriching, tissue-building food in Scott's Emulsion which contains pure Norwegian cod liver oil and is free from alcohol.

SAFFORD FOUND GUILTY.

Hotel Clerk Convicted of Perjury in the Osborne Case.

New York, Jan. 29.—A jury in New York federal district court, after deliberating ten hours, returned a verdict at 10 o'clock Saturday night, finding Frank D. Safford guilty of perjury when he swore that James W. Osborne, former assistant district attorney, was the "oil-eater" who accompanied Miss Rae Tanzer to a Plainfield, N. J., hotel. The jury recommended mercy for Safford, who had previously been convicted and sentenced to a term in prison, but was granted a new trial. The present trial began Jan. 8.

No More for Him.

As Kellar, the magician, was passing through the market one day he stopped before the stall of an old woman who was dealing in butter and eggs and thought he would have some fun with the old lady.

"Are those good, fresh eggs?" he inquired, pointing to a basket of eggs.

"Yes, sah, ver' good; jes' got 'em this morning," she replied, grinning broadly while she reached for a bag.

"I'll take a dozen," he said, handing her the money and taking the eggs.

He took one of the eggs out of the bag, tapped it and saying, "Well, well," broke it. Out rolled a glittering five-dollar gold piece. With apparent satisfaction he dried the coin with his handkerchief and placed it in his coat pocket as though it were quite customary to find money in eggs.

"The old lady stood by in undisguised amazement."

Kellar took another egg and broke it with the same result. Another gold coin came and clinked musically with the other. He broke a third egg, and by this time the old lady's eyes nearly popped out of her head.

"Well," said Kellar, "my good woman, I'll buy that whole basket!"

The old woman looked at him with wide-open eyes, and trembling with excitement, cried: "No, siree, not another one!"

TONIC FOR GROWING GIRLS.

Most growing girls need a tonic, especially during the years when they are springing up most rapidly and when their appetites are most fickle.

A diet of tea and candy will ruin any girl's chances of future happiness. A plentiful and scientifically correct diet might meet all requirements but this is next to impossible. Hence the need for a tonic. Almost every doctor's daughter is given a tonic during her period of rapid growth but because your daughter does not actually break down you do not call a doctor and she gets thin and pale, fidgets so that she cannot sit still on a chair, eats the wrong things, eats too fast, gets too little out-of-door exercise and perhaps faces St. Vitus' Dance, or a nervous breakdown.

A great responsibility rests on parents and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are the best and most convenient tonic to aid them in bringing their daughters to healthy and happy womanhood. They supply needed elements to the blood, and enable it to meet the unusual demands upon it and help to lay a foundation for future health.

The price of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is fifty cents per box. Your own druggist sells them or they will be sent on receipt of price by the Dr. Williams Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y.
